WALKER. - Although the overshadowing claims of the canvass now closed have not of late permitted us to bestow much attention upon Walker in our columns we have not by any means forgotten him or been unmindful of his course. On the contrary we have watched his movements closely and with constant interest. We yet have faith in his mysterious star. He has, indeed, committed many indiscretions, and some that appear to us all but inexcusable, and he has thus far, we confess, exhibited no very manifest or conclusive proof of that disinterested elevation of purpose by which we eive hoped and now hope that he is animated. But his purpose, if not elevated, is at leest wonderfully firm, and he has certainly displayed the highest courage and decision and the most unflinching fortitude in pursuing it.

Since the roar and tumult of the Presidential canvass shut Walker out from our immediate view he has been regularly chosen President of Nicaragua and has inaugurated a vigorous and efficient government in the teeth of the violent opposition of the very party upon whose summons he entered the country and whose aid and sympathy was believed to be the atmosphere he breathed. He has shed the stem on which he was supposed to be engrafted as a hopeful scion, and is shooting up in all the strength and glory of an independent plant. He is a Power. He has grown to be the State into whose veins he was transfused as a life-renewing principle. He is the acknowledged soul and body of Nicaragua. And we are bound to say that he never was in better plight or feather in his life, and that every future day now promises to add new strength to his arm and fresh laurels to his blushing brow. His government is not only strong and efficient, but it is likely to remain what it is, or to grow still more worthy of its high and solemn responsibility. is not only capable but stable. And we trust its stability may be lasting. It would seem, indeed, that Walker had at length achieved the conditions of permanent power, and that nothing remained for him but to enter heartily and without external restraint or embarrassment upon the work of regeneration which we hope he contemplates as the grand dream of his life. He has, as our readers know, just won the most signal victories over his leagued enemies at Messaya and Granada, victories which his in telligent adversaries in this country pronounced improbable if not impossible, and which, if thoroughly won, they confessed would determine his unchallenged superiority in Nicaragua and among the neighboring States. His future ascendency is undoubtedly assured. His government must now or quickly be accepted as a fixed fact in international politics, and be treatedaccordingly. And we have little doubt that it will be thus regarded promptly and cheer-

With this great vantage point secured, what will Walker do next? Will he hasten to redeem the promise of his first successes? Is he able, if he is willing, to regenerate the country he has conquered? We are not at all sanguine. With a population like that of Nicaragua, seconded by a clime and physical constitution which appear to speedily subdue even the higher order of foreign immigrants into the corrupt and servile temper of the natives, it is difficult to feel any strong confidence in the success of such an enterprise, if he should enter heartily upon it. Yet we hope that he will or upon it. It not in the highest degree successful, it may have glorious incidental results to humanity that will cover his name with im-

him from the category of vulgar Fillibusterism, into which there is imminent danger of his falling, and rank him in fuller harmony with what we believe to be his true merits. If, however, in an evil hour, he yields to the sinis ter suggestions of the aggressive party of this country, as insidiously presented by Soule, who has been appropriately selected to play the Devil to Walker's Eden if not to play the Devil with it, his chance for beneficent services to humanity and for honorable fame is utterly lost. He might as well come home and play the traitor openly with Wise and Brooks at once. If he honestly desires to reconstruct the fallen Central American Republic and addresses himself earnestly to that noble task it will be well. He may win a name as deathless as Washington's. But if, cherishing no such lofty desire, he consents to become the mere catspaw and tool of the Southern disunionists in their mad scheme of a Southern Confederacy, embracing Cuba, Mexico, Central America, &c., he will live in the memory of man, if he lives at all, as the most contemptible and miserable of all mortal pretenders He will be justly "damned to everlasting fame." Let him choose his destiny deliberately. The choice is fairly open to him, and the eyes of the world are upon him.

Like many of the emigrants of that period to Texas, he thought a change of name desirable. He therefore applied to the Congress of Texas and had his name changed to what it now is. Upon the presentation of the bill to make the change, Gen. Sam Houston offered this resolution or amendment: "Provided nothing herein contained shall go or be construed to legalize his former stealing acts." If the amendment was adopted, Mr. Charles De Morse is of course still liable for all the violations he committed of the eighth commandment before his name wasso changed as to render it difficult for his old acquaintances to trace him.

[For the Louisville Journal.] LINES.

Suggested after leaving home, and affectionately inscribed to my mother Mrs E. M. T. BY HENRY DA TUCK.

As all lonely I am sitting In the shadow of my room, Dreamy thoughts are ever flitting O'er the field of mental gloom; Like the shadow of a cloud
In its sweep across the sky,
Come the gloomy thoughts of home O'er the glory of mine eye.

Oh! I look without my window
In the still and twilight space, And each form that hurries by me Bears a cold and stranger face And my young soul, as in concert With the mystic gloom around, Sinks down in its loveliness, And gives up no joyful sound.

Here the sister form is wanting That once danced before my gaze, O'er the room in graceful shadows By the hearth-stone's cheerful blaze: But all grimly, slowly creeping O'er the dim and solemn wall,
Pass the stealthy shadows round me, Like to speetres dark and tall.

And no sister's voice is ringing
As she skips the lighted hal,
To drive back these shapeless shadows, And my spirit disenthrall.

And my mother—oh! where is she?

Sitting round the family stand! While her truant child is reaming In this cold and stranger land.

Oh, my mother! in some moment, In the shadow of the night, When the world is sleeping aweetly In the silver arms of light, And my sad, young heart is bowing Low beneath its weight of care, Wilt thou send thine angel spirit To me with a priceless prayer.

The New York papers have news from San Jose (Costa Rica) to the 8 hult. The war against Gen. Walker was to be prosecuted with the utmost vigor, and the Bishop of San Jose had offered all his private property to the Government for that puapose. A guard had been stationed on the frontier to watch the Nicaragua forces, Many deserters from Walker's army were daily coming in. A military force of nearly eight hundred men had been reviewed aud found in good order.

SPENCER HOUSE, CINCINNATI — During a recent brief visit to the "Queen City," we made the above house our home; and we desire now to say to our friends, who may have occasion to visit that city either for busine s or pleasure, that they will find the "Spencer House" all that is desirable in a first class hotel. Situated on the corace of Front street and Broadway, it is eligibly located for persons who have business to transact, and being under the control of two of the cleverest kentucky gentlemen anywhere to be found, every guestis made to feel as comfortable as if he were at his own home. So firm a hold has this excellent establishment acquired upon the people of this State, that one feels almost as if he were in Kentucky while solurning there, so large a number of its citizens are always to be found in its capacious saloons. Mesers. Pratt & Metoalfe, the proprietors, have for years been connected with the very finest hotels in the country, and they have acquired reputations unsurpased by any gentlemen in their business. Meler lease, which is a new one, with all the modern conveniences of the day, is a splendidly Turnished their clerks and assistants are gentlemen who thoroughly understand their tusiness; their servants are polite, attentive, and accommedating, and their table is superior to that of any hotel in Cincinnati, and is unsurpassed by any in the country. In short, we do not see how the "Spencer House" could be at all improved, and if our friends, on visiting it, de not find it all we represent, we will foot the bill of every man who has a complaint te make against it—that's all.—Lexington Observer

We can heartily endorse all that the Observer says of the Spencer House and its proprietors It is in all respects a model hotel. We do not

'The former Governor of Tamaulipas, Don

Jeses Cardenas, is also on our side of the Rio, with the same intentions. It is believed by both that Vidauri has the best chances of suc-

Messrs. Matthew and Thomas Nolen, who left Camargo on the night of the 11th inst., after having participated in several skirmi hes between the beligerent forces, in company with other Amricans, report the following news:

The fighting commenced on the 10th, and up to the night of the 11th success had not favored either party. Vidauri has 3,000 men under his command, some of whom are Americans. Camargo is defended by 1,300 Mexicass under command of Gen. Garza.

No general engagement had taken place, but
Gen. Vidauri had sent a despacth to Gen. Garza, informing him that unless he surrendered the town immediately he should commence to bombard it. [Besides several pieces of heavy ordinance, Vidauri has four howitzers or morfor Vidauri to "pitch in!" and immediately proceeded to fortify himself.

This was the state of affairs on the other side of the river, when the Messrs. Nolan left. The accounts from the Rio Grande concur in stating that Vidauri is popular on both sides of the river, and has at his command money and men sufficient to enable him to prosecute the pending revulution to a successful issue.

In addition to the foregoing we have been favored with an extract from a private source to a gentleman of high standing in our city, which states that Gen. Vidauri had possession of Mier, and probably, Camargo, also; and that he was making arrangements with persons along the line for the introduction of goods in-to Nueva Leon. PROCLAMATION BY THE MAYOR.

MAYOR'S OFFICE, }
Louisville, Ky., Nov. 1st, 1856 To the Citizens of Louisville:

In order to prevent riotous and disorderly conduct in the city at the approaching Presi dential election, I have thought it proper, in the discharge of my duties as Mayor, to issue special instructions to the Chief of P.lice, whereby peace and good order may be preserved in the city; and I do now appeal to all good citizens to aid the officers in the discharge of their duties, and to give countenance and support to them in their efforts to preserve the peace and quiet of the city. Especially do I appeal to and earnestly solicit all coff-e-house and tavern-keepers and other venders of spiritand tavern-keepers and other venders of spirituous or malt liquors in the city limits to close their places of business on Monday afternoon preceding the day of the election, and keep them closed till Wednesday morning following; and, during that time, to decline furnishing liquor to any one. If this is done, it will greatly contribute to a preservation of peace and good order in the city. It is likewise enjoined upoh all parents and guardians to keep their children away from the places of voting; if not kept away, and they should be in any way disorderly, or their assemblege in numbers around the polls should have a tendency to obstruct voters in the exercise of their right of suffrage, they will be arrested and imprisoned. The they will be arrested and imprisoned. The peace of the city must be preserved. Law and order must prevail. To secure this, provision has been made, and force will be resorted to if milder means will not suffice.

JOHN BARBEE, Mayor.

I cordially concur in the recommendation of the Mayor of the city of Louisville above made, and think it proper to add that the instructions and suggestions of the Mayor, as fir as becomes my duty as Chief of Police of the city, shall be honestly and faithfully carried out.

JAMES KIRKPATRICK,

Chief of Police. NEGRO INSURRECTION. - We learned last night that there had been an insurrection among the negroes in Tipton county, in the neighborhood of Big Creek, which was fortunately discovered and quelled before the purpose of the conspirators was accomplished. An organization of the slaves on several plantations had a plot to murder their mistresses and the children on election day, in the expectant absence of their masters, and then attack (if successful in their plans thus far) the polls. The conspiracy was disclosed by a slave of Mr. Wooten, of Ilpton county, and a number of those engaged in the plot, upon this information were arrested. It is expected that summary punishment will be meted out to the ring-leaders, as well as those who incited them to the insubordination, whose names, we understand, are known. Our information, though authentic, is indefinite as to data, and the particulars of the affair we are unable to give. Should further intelligence reach us to-day it will be promptly laid before our readers.

We learn further that a similar instance of insubordination of slaves has been discovered at Macon, in Fayette county, and their plans of operation were to have been put into effect on Saturday night last, but was fortunately discovered as in the case given above.

We take occasion again to caution the owners of slaves to increased and more active vigilance, as this is another evidence that there is among us recreant abolition emissaries, who are using utmost exertions to incite our slaves to the murder of their benefactors. Should any of these fellows be caught, they should be taught the virtue of hemp.—Memphis Bulletin.

DEATH OF COL. BOONE. - The Springfield (Mo ) Advertiser mentions the death of Col. Nathan Boone, youngest son of Daniel Boone, week before last, aged seventy-two years.

We thank our friend "Fannie, of Lousiana," for her exceedingly pretty and patriotic letter. We like her programme for the Presidential canvass of 1860 exceedingly. If Fannie will only, as she sweetly suggests, take the stump in our favor, we are assured that her efforts will more than counterbalance all the malignant speeches and writings of our male enemies:

MR PRENTICE:—I am crazy nearly about the coming election, and would give my life to see Millard Fillmore our next President. Yes, noble, honest, upright Fillmore—Fillmore, the pride of every true heart.

I am electioneering for our candidate, and I think successfully, for no longer than last week I made one of those rabid Buchananites pledge me his word and honor to vote for Fillmore at the coming election. That was not enough for a Fillmore lady. I knew too well the propera Fillmore lady. I knew too well the propensity the Buchananites have for what Mrs. Opie terms "white lies," and so I made him put this pledge in writing, and I vouch that Fillmore gets his vote.

Ah, Mr. Prentice, if we (the ladies of Louisiana) could vote at the coming election, Fillmore would get the vote of the State by an overwhelming majority. We do not doubt for one moment that the noble sons of Columbia will elect him, but then, oh, what a gratification it would be to us, and more especially to me, to be allowed to vote for that noble old patriot.

I am not an advocate of "woman's rights," but I must say I do think we ought to be allowed (if not to carry them) to send our votes to the polls.

If God sees fit to allow Millard Fillmore to be placed in the Presidential chair, I know he will do his duty. And, Mr. Prentice, when the excitement of another Presidential election shall be drawing near, we, the girls of this, our viilage, will hoist our flags, bearing the name of GEORGE D. PRENTICE as his successor; and don't be at all astonished if you hear I have taken the stump and am advocating yours and your noble party's cause.

Adieu, Mr. Prentice. Do your duty in future as you have always done it, for the sake of our Union and your little friend, FANNIE, of Louisiana.

MINNESOTA ITEMS - The common council of St. Paul are "agitating" the subject of lighting the streets of that city with gas. The newspapers of the place are supplying the town freely with that commodity already.

The St. Paul Times wishes its readers to "put into their pipes and smoke" the fact that that city has 10,000 inhabitants. Seven years ago the place where St. Paul now stands was a wil-

STEAMERS BETWEEN NEW ORLEANS AND HAVRE .- Messrs. Gautier, Brothers, & Co., with a capital of 60,000,000 of francs, have started a line of steamers between New Orleans and Havre, France. The steamers are the Francois Arago, Capt. Pierce; Barcelonne, Capt. Lemaine; and Tacquart, Capt. Bourdillet. being her first trip, and having many stoppages to make, she has been delayed in her voyage, but is now expected every day. The Barcelonne was to leave on the 11th of October and the Tacquart on the 1st of November.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE IN GEORGIA .- A destructive fire broke out in LaGrange, Ga, on the night of the 25th, devastating the entire west side of the public square, and resulting in serious personal injury to several persons. Some eight buildings were destroyed. A large amount of goods of various storekeepers was also burnt, and a building, occupied as a store and physician's office, was blown up, severely if not dangerously injuring Dr. Smith, Mr. Buchan, and several colored people. The amount of loss is not stated, but must be se-

THE FRENCH WINE CROP.-Letters from France state that the accounts from the vine districts respecting the result of the crop are very contradictory. In some parts of the Bordelais the produce will be indifferent, while in others, and particularly in the direction of Blaye, .t will exceed by one-third that of last year. Near Cannes the yield will be double the quantity expected, and the quality excellent. In the Maconnais some districts have been completely ravaged, but in others the vintage promises well. In Burgundy and Champagne the result will be satisfactory.

The jury having under consideration in Boston the charge against the officers of the steamer Menemon Sanford for neglecting to take proper measures to rescue a passenger who had fallen overboard have rendered a verdict which will probably bring them upon a criminal prosecution.

OPENING OF THE GRAND TRUNK .- The Grand Truck Railway was on Monday opened for traffic through the entire route from Quebec to ure a sad reality-at least to the victims. Stratford. A train left Montreal at half-past seven in the morning, and before eleven in the evening the Montreal papers of the same day were received in Toronto.

THANKSGIVING IN KENTUCKY. - We publish in another column the proclamation of Gov. Morehead, appointing the 20th inst. as a day of thanksgiving and prayer.

SINKING OF THE STEAMBOAT LADY FRANK LIN ON THE UPPER MISSISSIPPI-Several Persoms Drowned .- The mail steamer Lady Frank lin, which left Danleith for St. Paul on Tuesday night of last week, struck a snag on Thursday morning, just below Coon Slough, near Warren's Landing, some 230 miles below St. Paul, and sunk immediately. The St. Paul Times says, she went down within fifty feet of the spot where the Nominee was wrecked two years ago. Her timbers must have been very sotten, as she filled with water within two minutes after she struck. She had over 300 pas sengers, most of whom were taken off by the Faire City, and the others escaped on the barge. Seventy-five or eighty tons of freight and elewen head of cattle sunk with the boat, besides which, it is feared that some five or six passen gers also perished.

The St. Paul Times of a later date has fuller particulars in reference to this disaster. That paper says: As soon as the boat struck the snag, which penetrated her rotten side, the cabins became the scene of wholesale plunder. Four or five over coats were taken, and jewelry and money to large amounts were purloined in a few min utes after the collision. The stove upset, and fuid lamps spilling their contents on the floor, the flames communicated to the boat, and raised the cry of "fire" This, with the prospect of sinking, and the careening to one side, caused a scene of the greatest confusion.

On a recent trial for murder in Watson county, Missouri, a lad who was instigated to fire the gun which caused the death of the victim, father, was acquitted, and the father and an adult accomplice convicted of murder in the second degree, and sentenced to ten years imprisonment in the penitentiary. The racionals of this verdict is, that these parties being of mature years, induced the boy to commit the murder, but that a greater punishment than that of murder in the second degree could not go against them.

sus —It is extremely necessary for a stranger to have a "Konak," or protector, to secure himself, during his wanderings among the Moslem as well as the Christian tribes of the Caucasus. from injury or death at their hands. Konak offered himself to me on my first visit to an Ossetian village; but less from disinterested motives than the expectation of all kinds of gifts in exchange for his proffered friendship. The Ossetians, like the other tribes of Caucasus, are covetous of gain. My Ossetian friend knew enough Russian to enable us to understand each other, and he spoke largely of the importance of a Konak. "No Ossetian," said he, "will dare injure a hair of your head, knowing he will have me for an enemy, and should any misfortune happen to you, my kinschal will not rest in its sheath until i' is revenged." As I had no great faith in his officiousness, I told him that I also carried a kinschal to defend myself, and that my gun was my best protector.

However, as often as I made my appearance

My Ossetian friend, with turther assurance of friendship, disclaimed all wish of kopecks for the milk. The conversation which followed is worthy of being verbally copied from my diary. "Brother," said the Ossetian, "I love thee as the apple of my eye. The milk I bring thee is from my favorite cow, and will be relished by thee; it costs nothing—it is a gift of love; but hast thou not a pair of old boots for me? the road to our aoul is stony and rough and I am foot-sore."

I gave him a pair, which did not quite fit him; he took them, but espying a pair of new shoes in the corner of the room, he centinued, "These boots I shall keep in remembrance of thee—as often as I look upon them, I shall think of thee; The first of these steamships left Havre for New Orleans on the 30th of September, with full freight and seventy-three passengers. It being her first trip, and having many stoppages my friend, "here is a beautiful knife—let me keep this in remembrance of thee, whom I love more than my brother. Drink of the milk-it is good, and allow me to take the knife." nodded affirmatively, but with impatience, to show him that I was tired of his importunity. "The milk tastes good to thee," said the Oss tian, in the same insinuating tone, "I took it from my best cow, and thou shalt see her. But hast thou any powder? We will shoot during for thee, and bring thee the choicest portions." The Ossetian received several cartridges, and still persevered in his suit. "At Tiflis there is excellent tobacco, which smells better than our mountain flowers. hast certainly brought some of this with thee, and wilt rejoice the heart of my old father, at home, with several pipes of it." I told my dear brother that I was no smoker, and never carried any tobacco with me. The greedy eyes of the Caucasian swept over everything in the room, in order to make a further selection. I signed to the Hungarian to remove such articles as were lying about, to spare my Konak any further temptation. The milk can was in the meantime emptied and the Ossetian began again his demands. "The milk has tasted good to thee; I thought it would, for a beautiful cow such as mine, is not to be found in the mountains. To-morrow I will bring the more milk; it costs thee nothing. But hast thou not a glass of vodka? I am tired, and my home is far hence." I allowed the Ossetian to be presented with a glass of schnaps, and at the same time had him shown the door. He took his leave, still protesting that he loved me as a brother, and that the milk did not cost me a single copeck .- Travels in Persia, &c., from the German of Dr. Moritz Wagner.

NINETY DAYS IN THE IMPORTING BUSINESS. What a Fast Young Man Can Do and What One Did -The arrest of the young man Thomas P Wight, and the developments thereby brought out, continues to be a subject of general remark not only on Change and among business men, but with the community at large. As a revela-tion of "sharp practice," it throws entirely in the shade the operations of that other rast man Huntington, the Wall-street broker.— And besides, it is vastly more romantic; though to be sure, as in all such cases, it is in a meas

When asked on the examination whether the above statements signed by himself were correct, to his own knowledge, he replied: "I don't know; Thomson says it is." The other statements made by him at the examination were equally interesting, if not startling, as showing some loose business opera-

FEARFUL SCENE ATTENDING MR CHOATE'S SPEECH AT LOWELL .- The speech of Hon. Rufus Choate, in Huntington Hall, Lowell, on Tuesday evening, was attended by an incident of fearful aspect at the time, but which happily passed without the threatened calamitous results. A correspondent of the Boston Courier thus describes it:

rier thus describes it:

The meeting was convened in Huntington Hall, over the railway station. Ladies were admitted to the galleries, and these thronged, hall is one hundred and twenty by eighty feet. At 7 o'clock it was filled to repletion. Men stood packed together in the closest possible manner, and it was estimated that there were over five thousand persons within the walls.

This was the condition of matters. At 7: o'clock the committee of arrangements, the president of the night, Mr. Choate, and others entered the hall. They experienced some difficulty in wedging through the mass; but they at length reached the rostrum. I entered with them and took a seat at the table allotted to the press. The meeting came to order, was organized—the President, Mr. Whipple, was introduced, and was gracefully saying that he would not detain us—that this audience was here to hear another-and while thus agreeably engaged, a sound, as if from a cannon at a distance, filled all ears, and we felt the floor yield-There was a general panic and a moveing. ment toward the platform, and a great deal of excitement Mr. Choate was sitting on the rostrum, calm contemplative, and apparently indifferent, not that he was unconscious of the shock. He ininquired of a gentleman, seated near him, in his characteristic way, "Are we sinking to the earth?" and being informed that the hall was used for dancing purposes, and that it was the spring floor only that had given way, he observed, "Very well let us go on then." But the crowd was alarmed, and it was necessary to "There was no danger," and to ansay that nounce that "Mr. Joseph H. Rand, a member of the city government, and an experienced ar-chitect, would go below and examine the build-

I anticipated the greeting with some fear, lest it should be a signal for our destruction, but it is should be a signal for our destruction, but it passed over without any renewal of the forewarning; and the memory of the first shock was soon effaced, by the attractive eloquence and subtle reasoning of the orator. All thought of danger, Mr. Rand's return, everything selfish, had given place to the pleasures of the hour. Mr. Choate had spoken fully thirty minutes, when another dismal sound was heard; more sinking of the floor experienced, there was a panic and again a rush. Mr. Choate paused; Mr. Butler shouted that "There was no danger," others gave similar assurances; but the men were restive. The ladies alone were composed.

Mr. Whipple attempted to make himse f heard, but could not; and Mr. Choate came to his assistance. He urged gentlemen to be calm and firm; that an inspection of the building, thorough and satisfactory, would be made, and, if the place was not deemed safe, an orderly adjournment would be had at ence.

Mr. Butler stated that he would go below and endeavor to ascertain the true state of things. The floor settled at least six inches in the centre of the hall. There was some commotion in the ladies' gallery, and a movement, but confidence was restored, and for ten minutes general quiet was observed on the part of all.

Mr. Butler returned and said: "Gentlemen—

Although I have full confidence in the strength of this floor, although I am persuaded there is no danger, yet such is the state of feeling here, I think we had better adjourn. But let there be no stampede—retire in order."

In less than five minutes the hall was empty and all escaped accident and harm. And now let me say that there was danger imminent and awful. Mr. Butler, though he disguised his fears, entered the hall, never expecting to leave it alive; and to his firmness and intrepidity credit should be given for the preservation of that great concourse of men and women. He discovered, with Mr. Rand, that the floor had yielded perceptibly, that the which so alarmed all was the snapping of the iron fastenings and supports; that if the audience was not soon removed, the floor and the roof, and perhaps the side walls, would soon come down. He discovered that certain timbers and joists upon which the floor rested had given way, and that the ceiling of the depot becauth way canning shall threatening.

neath was opening and threatening. But the audience retired in order and without accident. The gentlemen on the platform were of the last to leave. Mr. Choate, while passing to the door, for the first time seemed to indicate by expression a realization of the danger which enviroged us. The floor actually sunk under him two or three inches, and he was heard to remark, "This is going;" but he retained his self-possession and walked on.

The people once out of the hall, the congratulations were general, and it was then only that men talked and discussed the perils passed. It is not becoming that I should pronounce upon the insufficiency of the supports of the floor; but I have it from Mr. Webster, and indirectly from Mr. Rand, that our escape was providential. Calm men say that ten minutes more of pressure and violence incident to demonstrations of applause would have hurled those thousands to ruin, to which death would have been a relief.

WIFE-BEATING ACCORDING TO SCRIPTURE. Recent London paper report a strange case of the perversion of the Scriptures. The case is thus stated in the London Illustrated Times:

The Rev. George Bird is preaching at Whitehaven, and holding forth the doctrine that it is perfectly Scriptural for a man to beat his wife; he is said to have a considerable congregation. One of his flock was lately taken before the magistrates for ill-using his wife; the woman said she had no wish her husband should be punished if he would promise not to ill-use her badly again. When asked by the magistrate whether he would make the requisite promise, he refused, saying, "Am I to obey the laws of God or the laws of man?" As he would not give the promise, the magistrates committed him for a month with hard labor. The Rev. Mr. Bird has since delivered a course of lectures on the subject of Scott's conviction. He contends that it is a man's duty to rule his own household; and that, if his wife refuses to obey his orders, he is justified, according to the aw of God, in beating her in order to enforce

The Florence correspondent of the Newark Daily Advertiser, under date of Sept. 5th, says:

Our countryman, Powers, whom mechanics have never forgiven for his success in art, is about to appease her with a new tool, which promises to supersede altogether the present file, by doing all its work easier, better, and cheaper. This instrument, originally invented to facilitate his operations in sculpture, has now been adapted to all the uses of the file in metals, ivory, bone, wood, leathers, etc., and will, mereover, take the place of the grater in the kitchen. The inventor has devised a compact machine for producing it in great numbers with the least possible expense, and, when the castings now in progress are completed, it will be brought into use—doubtless to the great profit of all parties.

The authors of this work have disappeared, the race is fast becoming extinct, and yet these ancient remains exist, a continuing illustration of the transitory nature of every form of civilization which was not connected with the knowledge of true religion. DISPENSARY. DR. A. KING, a practitioner of New York for the last thirty years, has opened a Dispensary on Market st., bet.

In thirty years, hasopened a Dispensary on Markets: bester in the Second, nearly opposite the Graham House, Lenisville, for the creatment of Frivate Diseases, such as Gonorhom, Syphilis, and all diseases of the skin and other dramper mentagrowing out-facelete or imperfecture. His lengar-erience and success enables him to act with considence. All those who may conside their cases to him may rest assured of having the disease effectually cured and every vestige of the difficulties perfectly oradicated from their constitutions. Stratomerates of old or recent date effectually cured in a few days by an operation which causes no pain. Where a stricture exists, general derangement of the whole constitution must ensue, a continuance of which will bring on a train of symptoms to be dreaded, and will undermine the constitution and causes premature old age.

SEMINAL WEARNESS.—Particular attention will begiven to this disease and all the connectuences growing out of the orange of the passions, which undermine the constitution, readering the subject until foreither business or society, and causing premature old age.

AP Personas broad, by writing and stating their case, with a fee anclosed (post-paid), can have the medicine seant to their address, with nocessary directions forusing the same, Theatricas teacers avobserved in allease.

deemed appropriate to set apart a day in each year, when the people, laying aside their daily avocations, may assemble together to present to Him who rules on high the offering of grateful hearts, for blessings which have been bestowed upon them in boundless profusion.

The present is a season of the year naturally associated with solemn and serious thought. The sun has withdrawn his fervent heat, the earth is now shedding her crown of glory. The winds are scattering the falling leaves, and the language of nature mingles its voice with that of revelation, and summons us to prostrate ourselves in adoration, and, with contrite and grateful hearts, to return humble thanks for all the goodness and mercy of God, and looking beyond the boundary of time to seek amid the desolation of decay "those green pastures and those still waters" where to the pure in heart than is an elevated engine.

During the past year we have been especially favored. In every part of our State the voice of joy and gladness has been heard. We are in the enjoyment of unparalleled prosperity.

The form of government under which we live the form of government under which we live secures to us life, liberty, and prosperity, and the right of worshipping God according to the dictates of our own conscience. We live in a land of freedom and are subject to no oppressive exactions. We have a fertile soil and a salubrious climate. The summer's sun has ripened for us the fruits of the earth. God has a subject to the summer's sun has ripened the year with his bountful geodese. crowned the year with his bountiful goodness, and, notwithstanding a long continued drouth, the stage—not the mail stage—for a profession, not respecting the customs of society, nor having the fear of the Lord before his eyes, willfully absconded from the city of Lexington, Ky., a short time ago with another man's wife. It appears he took up his line of march to Newport, in the same State, opposite us, and took lodgings at a private boarding-house, as man and wife. This anti-connubial bliss was ordained to be of short duration, as the gentieman who had a legitimate claim to the lady man who had a legitimate claim to the lady made his appearance at this boarding-house on Thursday evening last and made special inquiries for the twain. He was shown to their room, and in a moment was confronted with the destroyer of his happiness at whom he leveled a revolver and threatened to shoot.

ated husband and the yielding wife, to put himself in a safer position; and before a pistol could be fired, without endangering the life of the lady, he darted out of the open door, locked it, and then made his way out of the house and out of the State at a 2:40 gait, but whether in the stage or in the cars deponent saith not.

Of course the tumult created by the surp and the sudden exit of the offender aroused the landlord, who very wisely left the aggrieved party and his wife locked in their room, and as they did not intimate a desire to be released, he concluded they must have settled the affair am icably.—Cin. Com.
